Family sues after mom's corpse tumbles into grave

By Ben Carlson

A Lawrenceburg woman and her sisters are suing the operators of a cemetery in Franklin County after their mother's corpse was "ejected" from her casket and tumbled to the bottom of her grave,

Lawsuit contends cemetery operators tried to hide damages to casket, body according to a lawsuit filed Feb. 2 in Franklin Circuit Court by Louisville-based attorney Christopher Haden. Brenda Gardener and her sisters, Susan Nowak of Louisville and Ruth Ritter of Frankfort, are suing Indiana-based Saber Management, which operates Sunset Memorial Gardens, for undisclosed damages. They claim the cemetery used improper equipment to lower their mother's casket into a grave and conspired to cover up damages to the casket and their mother's corpse. They also claim the cemetery's operators were negligent, mishandled the corpse, committed fraud and intentionally inflicted emotional distress on the family. According to the lawsuit, cemetery operators used a

Lucas resigns after being drunk at scene of wreck, lying to police

A Lawrenceburg police officer who police say was drunk at the scene of a vehicle accident, who witnesses say told the vehicle's 19-year-old female driver to run, and who apparently lied to police about her identity will not face criminal charges.

Instead, Officer Kyle Lucas was offered and accepted a chance to resign, Mayor Edwinna Baker confirmed Tuesday afternoon.

The driver of the vehicle, Courtney Chesser of Lawrenceburg, is being charged with leaving the scene of an accident that occurred around 1:30 a.m. on US 127 in Franklin County.

On Tuesday, Franklin County Sheriff Pat Melton confirmed that Lucas would not be charged following a meeting with the Franklin County attorney.

"She will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident," Melton said, who insisted Lucas was not treated differently than anyone else would have been in that situation. "There isn't enough to prosecute him on."

the accident, but did not give Lucas a Breathalyzer test at the scene because Lucas had already claimed he wasn't driving.

Chesser, who was found in Lawrenceburg around 4 a.m. after the accident, told Lawrenceburg police she was driving the vehicle and offered a sordid explanation for the cause of the accident.

Chesser said that "Mr. Lucas was performing a sexual act on her that caused her to take her eyes off the road," according to a report obtained from the Franklin County Sheriff's Office.

Cheerleaders OK after fall

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Two Anderson County High School cheerleaders received quite a scare just before Saturday's basketball game at the school.

Laiken Bowen and Amber Kelly were injured when Kelly fell from the top of a pyramid just before tipoff of the Bearcats' game with McCreary Central. Several witnesses reported that as she was trying to stop Kelley's fall, Bowen fell backwards, hitting her head on the basketball court.

Bowen did not move from mid-court. Anderson basketball coach Glen Drury, cheerleading coach Tonya Bowman, sheriff's deputies Greg Boblitt and Robbie Armstrong and Anderson County school superintendent Sheila Mitchell tended to Bowen before members of the Emergency Medical Service arrived to transport her to Frankfort Regional Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Kelley appeared to sustain a wrist injury. The extent of her injuries had not been confirmed at press time.

Mitchell, however, confirmed that the injuries were not serious. "Both girls are OK and are at home," she said in an e-mail on Monday.

Main St. man indicted on incest charges

From staff reports

The Anderson County Grand Jury has indicted a Lawrenceburg man on four counts of incest, according to documents on file in Anderson Circuit Court.

Jeffrey Wolverton, 50, of 309 South Main St., was indicted on charges dating back to 1995. According to the indictment, he "committed the offense of incest when he had deviate sexual intercourse with a person whom he knew to be an ancestor, descendant, brother or sister, and who was less than 12 years of age."

Giving nature a second chance

Lawrenceburg woman helps injured wildlife recover, survive

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

Kentucky wildlife receive a second chance at Nature's Haven, an Anderson County animal recovery center focused on rehabilitating infant mammals and releasing them back into the wild.

Wildlife rehabilitator Robin Thompson, who has been managing the non-profit center for about a year, describes Nature's Haven as a "wildlife hospice," not a petting zoo or pest control.

"They generally have one foot in the ground by the time we get to them," she said.

Located on her property in western Anderson County, Nature's Haven supports a menagerie of recovering young woodland mammals, mostly squirrels, bunnies, raccoons, fawns and possums.

During the busy "baby season" from late February to October, Thompson said, she could have as many as 30 baby possums and 20 raccoons to nurse back to full health before their six-month release deadline.

"Every two hours, I'm feeding something," she said.

Because Kentucky Fish and Wildlife does not offer rehabilitation services, Thompson said, her registered wildlife care center fulfills a need that didn't previously exist for the eight counties she covers, including Anderson.

"There's not a resource for individuals for when they find injured infant wildlife," she said.

Thompson said she's always had a passion for animals, and at one time, wanted to be a veterinarian.

When she retired from her job in corrections, Thompson decided to finally pursue her love for wildlife by becoming a licensed rehabilitator.

Now, it's a 24/7 job.

"I couldn't do this by myself," Thompson said, mentioning the support of her husband, her veterinarian and Kentucky Fish and Wildlife conservation officers, "it's like a team effort."

Her other passion includes wildlife education, Thompson said, that people could learn more about how to coexist with their "wild neighbors."

Many of the calls she gets are from concerned citizens, many uneducated about the animals they find.

Possums are the most misunderstood, Thompson said, often regarded as aggressive animals.

"Of all the wildlife I rehabilitate, the possum is the most docile," she said. "I've never seen a possum play. Possums are very serious."

Infant mammals, Thompson said, can often die because of stress caused by those who don't know how to handle them properly.

ly. Like bunnies, which are much more emotionally fragile than people realize.

"They need to be on Xanax, bunnies are so fragile," she said. "Their stress level is very high."

Although she's a wildlife rehabilitator, Thompson still advocates other traditional methods of conservation.

"People think I'm a bunny hugger," Thompson said. "I support hunting. It's a method of wildlife conservation."

When Thompson has to release the animals back into the wild, however, it can be difficult for her let go.

It's going to be hard, she said, to release Jerome, a raccoon Thompson rescued from being internally ravaged by maggots.

That's one of the few things she doesn't really like about rehabilitation — the parasites and the crawly insects that often infect baby animals.

"Flies do not have any mercy on a vulnerable infant," Thompson said.

But when an animal survives against all odds, however, that's something to be proud of.

"It's very, very rewarding that you've helped something succeed to live and return to the wild," she said. "You're smiling with a tear, but you're happy."

Do's and Don'ts of Wildlife

Robin Thompson, a wildlife rehabilitator, offers tips for individuals who find themselves face to face with an injured mammal that may need to go to Nature's Haven.

Do

- Assess the situation. Make sure the animal is truly an orphan, and that the mother is not just out of sight.
- Safely secure the animal in a quiet, safe spot.
- Call your nearest wildlife rehabilitation center

Don't

- Feed infant wildlife cows' milk. Thompson said it can be deadly to baby mammals like possums and raccoons because the milk is too hard on their digestive systems.
 - Try to rehabilitate wildlife yourself. According to Thompson, it's illegal to hold a wild animal "captive," and anyone found guilty of illegal rehabilitating animals to keep as pets can be fined anywhere from $700-1,000.
- "Wildlife are no domestics," Thompson said, referring to "domestic" animals like dogs and cats. "To wildlife, you are a predator. It does not know you are there to help it."

burg.

Nature's Haven currently survives from donations — Thompson has applied for tax exempt status — and out of pocket funds. Thompson said she always accepts needed supplies like kennel wire, chain link fence, blankets and sheets, and medical and cleaning supplies.

backhoe on March 24, 2011 to lower the Katherine Galbraith's body into a grave.

The suit alleges that the casket fell from the backhoe and her corpse "sustained severe damage" when it was ejected and fell to the floor of the grave.

The casket was also damaged, including cracked sides, a broken handle, lid hinges and lock, according to the lawsuit.

The suit alleges that the operators then retrieved Galbraith's body, placed it back in the casket and partially buried it to hide damages before contacting the family. The family claims that the operators informed them by phone that the casket was "bumped" while lowering it into the grave, and that it sustained a few "scratches."

The operators asked if they could proceed with burial, but family members objected and contacted William Harrod of Harrod Brothers Funeral Home.

Harrod went to the gravesite and demanded the casket be raised.

When it was, the suit alleges that Harrod witnessed extensive damage and that when he raised the lid it "completely fell off."

When Harrod and family members viewed Galbraith's corpse inside the casket, they noticed large marks and scratches on her face, and that she was covered in "mud, dirt, leaves and debris," according to the lawsuit.

When they looked inside the vault, they saw a portion of the casket's lining, Galbraith's pearl necklace and a rose that had been inside the casket on the floor of the vault, along with a large amount of dirt.

Harrod then demanded that he be allowed to take Galbraith's body back to the funeral home so he could "re-dress" and "re-cosmetologize" her corpse and allow the family a chance to view her before a second burial, which occurred March 29.

The following day, Harrod contacted family members and said the cemetery's operators were refusing to pay the cost of a new casket because it did not reflect "wholesale" cost.

The family claims it suffered severe emotional distress due to the "extreme and/or outrageous and intolerable actions" of the cemetery's operators. They are seeking compensatory damages, punitive damages, payment for their injuries and for their attorney's fees to be paid.

David Sullivan, president of Saber Management, on Tuesday said that his company had only recently received a copy of the lawsuit, and that it is being reviewed by his attorneys.

be arraigned Tuesday morning in Anderson County Circuit Court.

The alleged incidents occurred between April 23, 1994 and May 5, 1995, according to the indictment. All four counts are Class C felonies.

Other indictments

Jason P. Leathers, 37, of 524 Hiawatha Trail, Frankfort, was indicted for second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking.

According to the indictment, the burglary charge stems from July 26 of last year at 1218 Pigeon Fork Road, Lawrenceburg. The theft charge alleges he took more than $500 but less than $10,000 in property on that date from Chris and Tonya Andersen.

Joseph B. Parde, 44, an inmate in the Powell County Jail in Stanton, was indicted for receiving under $10,000 in stolen property, stemming from an incident last October in Anderson County.

Andrew B. Garlen, 27, of 230 North Main St., Lawrenceburg, was indicted on a second-degree assault charge stemming from an incident Nov. 18, 2011 and involving Ashley Grubbs.

Corey Hopper, 21, and Steven R. Brown, 19, of 107 Bell St., Lawrenceburg, were each indicted for theft of farm equipment.

In incident allegedly took place Nov. 21, 2011 when they stole more than $500 but less than $10,000 in farm equipment from Dean Durr.

John. C. Mynhier Jr., 45, of 153 Ridgview, Frankfort, was indicted for first-degree possession of a controlled substance, a felony, misdemeanor possession of a controlled substance, DUI and other traffic charges stemming from an incident on Aug. 20, 2011.

David L. Holt Jr., 37, of 1129 Alton Station Road, Lawrenceburg, was indicted for theft by unlawful taking, a Class D felony.

The incident allegedly occurred Aug. 19, 2011 at the Early Childhood Center.

Jimmy Wash, 37, of 105 Alice Drive, Apt. B, Lawrenceburg, was indicted on charges of first-degree possession a controlled substance, trafficking a controlled substance and other misdemeanor drug charges.

All of the indictments stem from an incident dated Oct. 5, 2011.

RESIGNED

Lucas was tested for alcohol at the scene by another Lawrenceburg officer, Sgt. Les Vogt, who Baker said was called by the Franklin County Sheriff's Office.

Lucas failed that test, according to Lt. Chris Atkins of the Lawrenceburg Police Department, who was also at the scene.

Baker said she offered Lucas a chance to resign and when he did, the city's internal investigation into the incident stopped.

Atkins said Lucas was offered a chance to resign for what occurred that night despite not being criminally charged.

"The intoxication and wreck played a small part in it," said Atkins. "There's nothing against the law about being in a vehicle intoxicated."

"It was his dishonesty at the scene with deputies from Franklin County and telling [Chesser] to run."

Asked why he thinks

Kyle Lucas uses his cell phone following a wreck on US 127 early Friday morning in Franklin County. He resigned his position Tuesday.

Lucas was not charged with giving false statements to police or alcohol intoxication in a public place, Atkins said, "I can't answer that."

Atkins added that Chesser's claim of a sexual encounter leading up to the accident "didn't weigh into the decision" to accept his resignation.

According to the sheriff's report, Lucas was found behind a fence on private property following the wreck. Witnesses told police that they heard Lucas telling Chesser to run, which he later denied.

The report also says that at first, Lucas claimed he didn't know Chesser's identity, and at one point provided the name of another woman who was later determined not to be involved.

Atkins said it wasn't until later that Lucas revealed Chesser's name to him and Sgt. Vogt.

Footage of the accident was captured by TV station LEX18, and posted to its website. The station's initial report said only that a man escaped injury after his van struck a guardrail and ended up on its side.

The Anderson News saw the footage, and contacted Melton's office to inquire about what happened.

The paper also spoke Monday with Baker, who said the incident was being investigated and that Lucas was on non-paid administrative leave.

State OKs proposed health cuts, keeping health director part time

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

State health officials have approved nearly $190,000 in payroll and other cuts proposed by the Anderson County Health Board's finance committee, sources have confirmed.

The spending cuts are designed to wipe out the department's $185,000 annual operating deficit, and must still be approved by the full board of health. The board's next meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 15 at the health department, located on Glensboro Road.

Health director Brandon Hurley, who had his hours reduced to 100 per month and was placed on probation late last year, will remain at that level if the board finalizes the reductions.

The names and positions of others expected to either have their jobs eliminated or hours reduced have not been revealed.

Those changes are expected to be announced during next Wednesday's meeting, if approved.

Only one employee is expected to be laid off, but others are expected to be moved from full-time to part-time employment.

The reductions will reduce the department's payroll an estimated $163,000, and account for roughly 10 percent of the department's $1.3 million payroll budget.

The health board will also be asked to approve an additional $30,000 in spending cuts in a variety of categories.

"We are going to cut travel by $5,000," said health board director Harold Todd. "There will be no more out of state travel, and the only in-state travel will be for what is essential," he said.

Travel became a hot button during the past year for the health board, largely due to health director Brandon Hurley attending functions in Texas, Utah, Ohio and Connecticut.

Also cut will be contraceptives. Todd said $4,000 will be trimmed from the department's $12,000 budget. He said the department will continue to provide free condoms because it receives those at no cost.

Women's contraceptives, he said, are where the cuts will be because those are expensive.

Also cut will be $4,000 in program supplies, $2,500 in advertising and $6,900 in what Todd called "space occupancy."

"That includes utilities," Todd said.

"For instance, we'll have the thermostat turned down to 65 at night instead of leaving it at 70, and we'll turn off the outside lights at night."

The health department has been bleeding reserve cash for the past several years, leaving the health board no option but to spend down its reserves or raise property taxes.

To balance its budget in the current fiscal year, the health board opted to spend roughly $160,000 of its reserves, leaving it nearly broke.

The current $185,000 deficit includes $113,000 in annual payments for the new health building that opened last spring.

Here's a better way to raise taxes

Information I shared in last week's column about pending trouble for the library included some incorrect information.

The accurate information, though, is even more troubling, depending on where one stands on taxes and how they are levied. Last week I wrote about a lawsuit against the public library in Campbell County, brought by citizens who maintain that it has been illegally setting tax rates.

It's a complicated case, which last Friday was taken out of circuit court there and sent into federal court.

The short version is that instead of relying on a House bill dating back to the late 1970s, libraries formed as taxing districts are supposed to raise (or lower) tax rates under the authority of KRS 173.

That apparently applies to our local library, and 173 in some cases requires a public vote before a library can alter its tax rate.

Getting the public to approve its own tax increase would be rather daunting in good financial times; nearly impossible in times such as these.

But unfortunately for the library folks here, getting public approval in the ballot box would actually be a walk in the park compared to the way they actually have to accomplish that task.

Having looked into this further, I've found that KRS 173.790 addresses how libraries formed by petition, such as ours, have to alter their tax rates.

And brother, it isn't easy.

Here's the deal: Rather than winning a public vote, libraries such as ours must form a petition and get the signatures of 51 percent of the number voters in the previous election. That would equate to several thousand signatures, even following a light turnout.

Then those petitions would have to be sent to the fiscal court, where magistrates would have the final say.

It stands to reason that the library has strong core support, easily numbering into the hundreds those who would stand in line to sign such a petition. It also stands to reason, though, that the tens of thousands of other residents who rarely if ever interact with the library would need considerable convincing before signing a petition to raise their own taxes.

Doing so would require a remarkable sales campaign by the library's board of trustees, not only to explain its petition but also to let so many people be made aware that their signatures are needed. How they would accomplish that is anyone's guess, particularly when the library's tax rate has already increased nearly 150 percent over the past 12 years.

Consider also that should they be successful one year, doing so again and again in subsequent years would quickly become tiresome not only for core supporters, but a tax-weary public tired of seeing other public agencies raise their taxes, too.

And before anyone thinks that the wording of the petition could be made vague or mildly misleading (not that such a thing would happen), the KRS spells out exactly how it must read. And, unlike petitions non-affiliated candidates for public office must file to get their names on a ballot, the petition also requires the signer's address and date it was signed.

I've written news articles about taxes in other states, including one where school board budgets had to withstand a public vote each year, but I've never seen anything quite this strident.

At first glance, this method appears downright onerous and unfair to those charged with keeping a library funded.

But is it? Frankly, I see nothing whatever wrong with those empowered to tax us needing to present strong evidence that an increase is needed and ask a majority of voters to sign up for the increase.

Not only would those making the request be gun-shy about doing so, but those who willingly sign up to have their taxes raised would almost certainly have a much more thorough understanding on how their local government bodies work, and the challenges they face.

Will that ever happen? Of course not. Even KRS 179, which does mandate this for libraries, has apparently slipped through the cracks or been openly ignored (the latter is my guess) by those who prefer to raise taxes without any public consent whatsoever.

To expect state government, schools, fiscal courts, city councils or any other taxing agency to impose such rules on themselves simply isn't going to happen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Phrases to help promote a happier life

To the editor:

Life isn't fair, so don't expect it to be.

Life is filled with good and bad, and you will get your share of both.

Victory is easy. Disappointments will teach us more than joys.

There is a silver lining to every dark cloud. Destructive times in life are like concrete blocks. You have the power to let go. It is up to you.

Don't measure every man by the same ruler; give him respect. Appreciate a sunrise and count your blessings.

The best things in life are free. The choices are yours. You weren't promised a rose garden — create your own. There is a doctor who lives inside of us; body, mind and spirit are connected. When the works are in tune, we are complete and creative.

The greatest tasks in life pay no monetary wages; they have their own rewards.

Have you been successful in life? Are you happy? Do you forgive? Yes, everyone, whether they ask for forgiveness or not.

Last but not least, do you love?

When we leave this life, our success should not be measured by the jobs we have had or how many cars are in the funeral procession, but how we lived.

Did we love and forgive? We are here for a short visit. Don't hurry, don't worry and be sure and smell the flowers along the way.

We are all God's children, and he doesn't create junk!

In marriage, love makes the difference

A couple of years ago, some friends of mine reported this experience on Valentine's Day.

The husband forgot to make dinner reservations. The couple tried several nice restaurants but found that they were booked. Then they went to a family restaurant of a national chain. They enjoyed their dinner, had fun talking, laughing about experiences they had and celebrated being together for 23 years.

They observed a couple sitting close to them that never spoke during their entire meal. My friend said that it was remarkable that whenever they happened to look toward this other couple, there were no smiles, no animation, just blank faces and total silence. My friends wondered why the other couple had gone out to dinner on Valentine's Day.

Joan Martin
Columnist

All marriages — even the very best of marriages — have challenges at times. That's a normal part of having two people work out a life together. Listed below are a few ways to strengthen marriages.

Ask for help

You may not get it but no one is a mind reader, no matter how much time you've been together. "I'm very stressed right now. I wonder if you could help me by getting dinner, helping me cleanup the house, or helping the children with homework."

Those statements are much more inviting than "You never help me. You don't seem to notice anyone's needs but your own."

Confrontation isn't a very good change agent

John Gottman has observed that the only way to get people to change is by accepting them as they are. Conflict will happen, but love makes the difference.

Even marriages that seem unhappy often become very satisfying over time if both partners prevent anger and resentment from taking over. In fact, differences in marriage can help us grow and help us build a better relationship.

Are you actively doing things to strengthen your relationship? Do you spend time together doing fun things? Do you take an interest in your partner's activities?

John Gottman has written an excellent book on marriage that includes a chapter on conflict called, "Solve your solvable problems." The book is called The Seven Principles for Making Marriage Work. If you want additional ideas to help you work through differences with your partner, this book can provide practical ideas.

Shooting the messenger

Newspapers are easy to hate.

Believe me, I did. Once upon a time, I viewed the newspaper as an old, cantankerous uncle with foul breath, whispering unwanted horror stories right before I fell asleep.

But despite what I once thought or what disapproving finger pointers say, that's not the newspaper's fault. Blame human nature.

Every week I meet, interview and write about those who strive to make the community a better place to live and work.

I like these people, and I enjoy telling their stories. It's also the newspaper's responsibility, however, to tell the truth: the good, the bad and the ugly.

And sometimes, it can get pretty ugly. When the weekly newspaper prints material about the darker side of humanity, it's not upholding violence, murder and sexual deviancy as the best Lawrenceburg can offer.

The front page has never and will never represent any sort of standards ruler by which we should measure moral behavior.

Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

We are all too imperfect for that kind of impossible expectation.

We triumph.

We fall.

We get back up again.

And the newspaper's duty is to be there, with pen and notepad and camera, to try to capture every angle and aspect of that often uncomfortable journey.

Local media, such as the newspaper, is essential for communities like Lawrenceburg, where rumors could go unchecked and unverified, and important government meetings unattended and unacknowledged.

There's a Thomas Jefferson quote journalists like to rely upon in conversations like these: "The basis of our governments being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them."

Even with the serious gaps of knowledge with the current educational system, I believe The Anderson News is still comprehensible to today's average reader.

Wild card tosses weather prediction for loop

I love this weather. I'll take 60 degrees on Groundhog Day instead of ice, anytime.

This isn't even close to what I predicted for our winter weather. My friend Tina asked me a while back what happened. Well, I found out.

Turns out we had a wild card in the mix. Before I get to that, I should remind you that the Jet Stream moves our weather across the country. Picture Old Man Winter sitting off the California coast, with cheeks puffed out and blowing east. The wind stream that results travels like a Kentucky country road, with lots of ups and down across the country.

Enter the wild card known as the Arctic Oscillation. It deals with the atmospheric pressure, between the Arctic and the mid-latitudes of the North Atlantic and North Pacific Oceans. There can be high pressure and low pressure and it moves up and down like a seesaw on the playground.

Think of the pressure as positive or negative. Last winter it was in a very negative phase, so we had the cold and snow we normally associate with winter. This winter we've had a very positive phase, holding all the cold well north. There are many other factors that jump on the winter weather bandwagon, but this is the simple answer to our unusually warm winter. I am happy to have been wrong on this one.

Let's take advantage of all this mild weather and do a little gardening. You can prune roses and fertilize them. You can sow seeds for carrots, beets, cabbage and peas. Hopefully, by the time you have read, this I will have already planted peas and carrots.

If you didn't get any tulip bulbs in last fall, you have a second chance, and you don't even have to dig. Find an empty flower bed and loosen the soil a bit. Mix in a little bulb fertilizer and then lay the bulbs on top. Don't press them into the soil. Next, cover them with 4 inches of mulch and you're done.

Inside the house, it's time to add a little potting soil to your house plants. Think of it as top dressing. It's also the beginning of seed starting time, so if you haven't ordered seeds, get started.

I have some exciting news to share with you all. This is so cool. By March of this year, we will begin a seed library at our public library. Instead of checking out books, audios or DVDs, you can check out seeds for herbs, edibles and ornamentals for the season. At the end of the season, you will harvest and save seeds from your grown crops, and return those. Best of all, it's totally free.

Now, before you get too excited, we are just beginning the seed library. Our collection will grow, with everyone's help. We'll have a little orientation for users, so that everyone knows how to collect and save seed, before you are allowed to check anything out. Give us time and keep your Saturday mornings free in March and the beginning of April. We will have several gardening workshops, all free, during that time.

There will be one Tuesday class on March 13 at 7 p.m., and I'll be presenting the program. Remember, we only have six more Mondays before spring officially arrives, so get going on those gardening chores.

Just like the cat said after he got his tail caught in the door, "It won't be long now."

Happy growing.

Judge calls on library to save money, halt expansion

Conway asks for, doesn't get vote of support from magistrates

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

The public library's board of trustees should hang on to its available money, halt its expansion plans and not go into debt, Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway said during Tuesday's meeting of the Anderson County Fiscal Court.

Conway said he hoped the fiscal court would join him in sending a message to the library board in the form of a vote to encourage it to reserve its funds, pending the outcome of a lawsuit sweeping across northern Kentucky.

But that didn't happen. Aside from one question from Magistrate Forest Dale Stevens, the court, minus missing magistrates Jureta Wells, David Ruggles and David Montgomery, sat silent.

Magistrates in attendance were Buddy Sims, Kenny Barnett and Stevens.

Conway made his request after he and County Attorney Bobbi Jo Lewis outlined the lawsuit, brought by taxpayers in Campbell County who contend a library board there has for years been raising taxes improperly.

Lewis, who at Conway's request has already sent a letter to local library officials outlining the suit, said the issue is that libraries such as Anderson's have relied on a House Bill 44, rather than KRS 179.790 to raise tax rates.

Lewis said libraries currently use HB 44 along with Chapter 32 of the KRS, rather than KRS 173.790.

She said the lawsuit has since been sent into the federal court system to determine which side is right.

"Whatever happens in that case could have an impact here," Lewis said.

"If they decide 132 controls it, then it's status quo. If they decide it's 173, that's a whole different story and it could have a drastic financial impact."

Conway added that if the library follows through with expansion plans this year and acquires debt, it could make matters even worse.

"I think we ought to send them a message and tell them how the fiscal court feels," said Conway.

"Can we do anything but send them a message?" asked Stevens.

"Apparently not," replied Conway, who said he has spoken with legal council aside from Lewis.

"Had I been asked, I would have concurred," Lewis said.

That libraries opt for the HB 44 method isn't surprising. KRS 179, among other things, would require 51 percent of the number of voters in the previous general election to sign a petition calling for a tax increase, which would then have to be approved by the fiscal court.

Conway said he has nothing against the library, but is concerned that borrowing large amounts of money to expand at this time worries him.

"The health board expanded and is now running a $185,000 a year debt," he said. "I don't want to see the library add on and do the same thing they have and end up having to raise taxes."

Conway went on to say that, in his opinion, the library is already taxing residents plenty by receiving roughly 70 percent of the revenue the fiscal court does to operate all of county government.

"I have a problem with that," he said.

Currently, the fiscal court operates based on $1.27 per $1,000 of assessed value on local property.

The library's tax rate is 88 cents per $1,000.

Shocking realities of prescription abuse drives summit to fight

By Tara Kaprowy
Kentucky Health News

Prescription drug abuse has become so prevalent in parts of Kentucky, people are buying Mason jars of clean urine at flea markets and under the table at tobacco stores so they can pass drug tests.

Almost two-thirds of Kentuckians have used prescription drugs for non-prescription reasons, 30 percentage points higher than the rest of the country.

Those were just some of the sad, startling facts that surfaced Wednesday in Lexington during the Kentucky Prescription Drug Summit, the second comprehensive, statewide gathering on the subject in two weeks.

The summit was sponsored by the two U.S. attorneys for Kentucky, hosted by the University of Kentucky and brought together law enforcement, physicians and the pharmaceutical community to learn more about the problem and cooperate in fighting it.

"We're galvanizing our forces, all of our forces, in this fight," Gov. Steve Beshear told the packed crowd. "This is a corrosive evil and we have to stop it." He noted that drug overdoses kill more Kentuckians than traffic accidents, and other speakers said the overdose numbers are underreported.

"I think a lot of our people have had enough," said Kerry

Harvey, the chief federal prosecutor for Eastern Kentucky. That's where the problem is worst, but speakers made clear it is statewide.

The state has electronically tracked prescriptions since 2000, but Attorney General Jack Conway said only about 25 percent of doctors use the Kentucky All-Schedule Prescription Electronic Reporting system, and KASPER's data are "just sitting there and law enforcement are not able to access it" to proactively search for people getting an unusual amount of drugs.

Beshear recently appointed a panel of health-care providers to establish guidelines to identify over-prescribers through KASPER, and his budget proposal would put more money into the system and set up the state's first substance-abuse treatment program for Medicaid recipients.

House Speaker Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, is expected to file a bill that would require drug prescribers to use KASPER. That bill or another would also require pain clinics to be owned by doctors.

The speeches from officials were leavened with personal stories of drug abuse, death and near-death.

Marine Lance Cpl. Daniel Gross, 26, said he was 21 when his addiction started. He was introduced to pain pills shortly after a roadside bomb exploded beside his Humvee in Iraq in 2006. With his right foot shattered, his other one broken and his brain injured from the blast, he was prescribed Percocet and oxycodone. With prescriptions "overflowing" at Camp Lejeune, N.C., taking pills became commonplace.

"If I ran out, I got them from someone else," Gross said.

Quickly he became an addict, a burden he carried with him after he was discharged two years later.

"I pawned, stole, lied, cheated," he said. "Nothing else seemed to matter." After two stints in rehab, Gross was able to overcome his addiction. Now clean for 14 months, he won a standing ovation from the crowd.

Police and local prosecutors expressed their frustration over the problem, with State Police Major Anthony Terry likening the situation to "a dog chasing its tail."

Floyd County Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner said, "We are not treading water ... We are drowning in a sea of pills, and if something is not done the whole region is going to be destroyed."

Driver collides with squad car after running red light

From staff reports

Officer Joe Saunier, a city police officer, was released from the hospital Feb. 2 after sustaining injuries in traffic accident that morning.

The two-vehicle crash occurred a little after 8 a.m. at the intersection of Woodford and South Main Street on Feb. 2.

Officer Jeremy Cornish, who said he witnessed the collision, said a female driver, the sole passenger of the vehicle, was traveling east on Woodford Street when her brakes allegedly malfunctioned.

Caitlyn Smith, 21, ran the red light with her Silver Mazda and collided with Officer Joe Saunier's squad car as he was traveling south on Main Street.

Saunier was transported to the University of Kentucky hospital. Smith was transported to Frankfort Regional Medical Center for serious, but not life threatening injuries sustained in the accident. Both Saunier and Smith were later released from the hospital.

Saunier and Smith were wearing their seat belts at the time of the collision, according to the accident report released by state police. No citations were issued.

EMS, city fire, city police and the Kentucky state police responded to the scene.

The accident remains under investigation by Kentucky state police.

Judge tosses out redistricting; King remains 'optimistic'

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

State Rep. Kim King's hopes of being able to run for re-election here and in Mercer and Spencer counties took another leap forward late Tuesday afternoon when a Franklin Circuit Judge tossed out controversial House Bill 1.

That bill, passed earlier this year and signed into law by Gov. Steve Beshear, would have pushed King out of Anderson County because it divided her home county of Mercer.

In his ruling, Judge Phillip Shepherd ordered that the filing deadline for House and Senate be extended once again, this time until Feb. 10.

King

Contacted late Tuesday afternoon, King said she had just been handed a hard copy of the judge's ruling, and hadn't had time to thoroughly read it.

She did say, however, that it was good news and that she remains "cautiously optimistic."

Shepherd wrote that his ruling is final and appealable, which is likely to happen from the Democrat-controlled House.

The appeal will likely be taken to the state Supreme Court, which is scheduled to return from break Monday.

Frankfort Regional again one of state's best places to work

From staff reports

Frankfort Regional Medical Center was recently named as one of the Best Places to Work in Kentucky for 2012 — making the recognition the sixth consecutive for the hospital, the hospital announced in a news release.

The awards program was created in 2005 and is a project of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, Kentucky SHRM Council and Best Companies Group.

Frankfort Regional received the overall number one ranking for the large-sized employer list back in 2009.

"Being named as one of the Best Places to Work in Kentucky for the sixth consecutive year demonstrates the winning culture our employees have created and embraced here at Frankfort Regional," said Chip Peal, the hospital's chief executive officer.

"Our employees are just as important as our other customers — patients, families and affiliated physicians. We listen to and respect their opinions, respond to their needs to the best of our ability, and treat them as indispensable parts of our organization."

This statewide survey and awards program was designed to identify, recognize and honor the best places of employment in Kentucky, benefiting the state's economy, its workforce and businesses. The Best Places to Work in Kentucky 2012 list is made up of 65 companies — 37 of which are in the large sized category.

To be considered for participation, companies had to fulfill the following eligibility requirements:

Have at least 25 employees working in Kentucky;

Be a for-profit or not-for-profit business or government entity;

Be a publicly or privately held business;

Have a facility in the state of Kentucky; and Must be in business a minimum of 1 year.

The selection process, managed by Best Companies Group, is based on an assessment of the company's employee policies and procedures and the results of an internal employee survey.

Frankfort Regional Medical Center will be recognized and honored at the Best Places to Work in Kentucky 8th Annual Awards Dinner on Thursday, April 19 at the Galt House Hotel in Louisville.

The final rankings will be announced at the event.

CHRISTIAN ACADEMY STUDENTS

MEET 'MISS LIBERTY'

'Miss Liberty' Sue Litkenhus shares a little history about the Statue of Liberty with Zander Lewis, a student in 'Miss Dee's' preschool class at the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg. 'Miss Liberty,' a representative of Liberty Tax Service, uses tax time to visit with students all over Anderson County "about the physical features of the statue itself, how it found its place in New York harbor and why it represents such an important part of our nation's freedom," superintendent Steve Carmichael said via e-mail.

STEPPING UP AT TURNER ELEMENTARY

Tates Creek High School's Step Team performed for Robert B. Turner Elementary students in an assembly held on Friday, Feb. 3. After the assembly they taught the fifth grade students some of the basic steps in small groups.

MRS. KAVANAUGH

This picture of the late Mrs. Rhoda Kavanaugh, sitting in her rocking chair with her familiar 'pointer,' will revive many memories in the hearts and minds of all her former pupils. She is shown here helping a student work a geometry problem. The photo ran July 30, 1964.

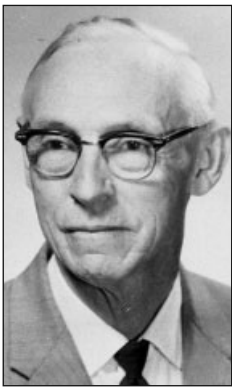

Teacher lectured parents on law and order

The following column was written by Wyatt Shely and ran in his "Our Heritage" column Jan. 25, 1962.

On October 4, 1894, Superintendent W. D. Moore visited the one room Goodlett School, where a young lady was found teaching 84 pupils. Twenty-nine of these were in the first grade. The homemade seats each held as many as three pupils. There was a small blackboard, but there were no maps or charts. The history class was "ungraded," but children from age 10 to 18 listened intently as Miss Rhoda Caldwell taught them the principles of our government. There was class in mental arithmetic. Square root and perfect cubes kept the older pupils busy while the teacher had each smaller child line up for a counting drill.

The "natural born teacher" visited homes in the neighborhood and lectured parents on the necessity for law and order. Following the close of the Civil War, there was wide-spread disorder in many parts of the county. Family feuds resulting from bitterness over the outcome of the war continued for many years. Quarrels, fist-fights, gun-fights, and a few killings occurred in Anderson County. Miss Caldwell did much to improve the citizenship of that section of the county, generally known as the cut-off. She served as her own "truant officer." She insisted upon good attendance, and she knew when one of her four-score pupils was "playing hooky."

Rhoda attended Birdwhistell Academy in Lawrenceburg before going to the University of Kentucky. She married Dr. C.W. Kavanaugh and founded the well-known Kavanaugh Academy in Wyatt Shely, local historian and educator, wrote 'Our Heritage' column, which ran for many years in The Anderson News.

Lawrenceburg. Her success as a teacher is well-known. She trained some 200 boys for West Point and Annapolis in addition to her teaching and coaching local young men and women regularly enrolled in her school. In 1909 she became principal of the Anderson County High School, which for 40 years was general known as Kavanaugh High School.

Mrs. Rhoda Kavanaugh died in 1959. She is buried in Lawrenceburg Cemetery.

Tyrone School

Another rural school (1894) with more than 70 enrollment was Tyrone where J. M. Baker was the teacher. This school had patent seats, but no maps or charts. Water was carried in a three-gallon bucket from a spring three-fourths of a mile from school.

There were also three pupils for each seat at Tyrone. However, in 1894, a new building was erected at Tyrone. It was a two-room building with folding door. Both Superintendent Moore and the Tyrone community were proud of the new building.

Other schools

With 82 enrolled, Mr. M.W. Hyatt was teaching at Camden. Miss Annie Arstron was teaching a large class in a condemned building at Providence.

The Way We Were

Blackboard paint recipe

Teachers or trustees kept the schoolhouse in order. Following is a formula for blackboard paint furnished for the schools in 1895.

To one gallon of alcohol, add one pound of gum shellac, shaking and stirring until the shellac is well dissolved. Then add six ounces of pumice stone and enough lamp black to give the desired color. It is best to cut the lamp black with a little alcohol before it is put in. One pint of mixture is sufficient for three square yards of board.

40 YEARS AGO Feb. 4, 1982

Claude Perry was pictured using his birthday gift, a pool cue, at Schweighardt's Store in Glensboro.

Glensboro residents helped him celebrate his 86th birthday with a party at the store.

The World War I veteran had lived in the area all his life and he and his wife, Ann Robinson Perry had lived in Glensboro for 40 years.

A.C. Royalty was named chief of the newly-formed Western Volunteer fire department. Other officials elected were: Bobby Hume, assistant chief; Clifton Nutgrass, secretary; Billy Ford, treasurer; Lonnie Flora, public relations; Paul Yates, equipment maintenance; A.C. Royalty and Bobby Hume, fire board.

There was a population explosion on the Doug Drury farm on Puncheon Creek. A nanny goat belonging to Doug's son, Joey, presented its proud owner with not two, but four kids. They were pictured on the front page being held by Joey and his son, David. All the kids were spotted with one being mostly black, one brown, one reddish colored and one mostly white.

Carol Sparrow took over the job as bookmobile librarian after Betty Richmond took a position in the library following the retirement of Joann Routt.

Five members of the Anderson County High School Chorus were in the Kentucky All-State Chorus.

The students were: Jackie Harley, Gina Rue, Leon Waldrige, Rex Burkhead and Sharon Roark.

Four generations of the Sharsle Drury family lived together on the family farm on Puncheon Creek.

There was Doug, 53, and his wife, Aline "Mama," Joey, 25, and his wife, Janet, and son David, 6; Sharsle, 79, and Danny 32. Danny and Joey are sons of Doug and Aline.

Winners in the candy selling project of Cub Scout Pack 38 were: Glenn Gehefer, 9, son of Margie and Glenn Gehefer, who received a watch for first place; Chad Ritchey, 9, son of Ann and Ken Oliver, who received a canteen for second; and Cory Sims, 9, son of Jenny and Jerry Shouse, who received a flashlight for third place.

Mike Riley of Ripy Street won $20 in The Anderson News Basketball Contest by being the only person to get as many as 15 games correct.

We mourn the passing of our dear friend and co-worker,
Chandra Loran Schmelzer Ennis,
West Park Branch Manager.

Our deepest sympathies to her husband, Daniel, her parents, brother, extended family and host of friends. You are in our thoughts and prayers, and Chandra is forever in our hearts.

Five hundred witnesses can't be wrong

I am often perplexed by those who do not believe the Bible is real or believe in Jesus.

Hundreds of original manuscripts of the Bible exist today. Hundreds of eye-witnesses saw Jesus crucified and rise. These are the documented facts.

The Bible is not some elaborate fable or book of thoughts. It is no less than the inspired word of God. There have been many manipulations of what the Bible says by various religions, but its words are the same today as they were 2,000 years ago.

A key verse to me that covers this concept is 1 Corinthians 15:1-7: 1. "Now, brothers and sisters, I want to remind you of the gospel I preached to you, which you received and on which you have taken your stand." 2. "By this gospel you are saved, if you hold firmly to the word I preached to you. Otherwise, you have believed in vain." 3. "For what I received I passed on to you as of first importance: that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures." 4. "That he was buried, that he was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures." 5. "and that he appeared to Cephas, and then to the Twelve." 6. "After that, he appeared to more than five hundred of the brothers and sisters at the same time, most of whom are still living, though some have fallen asleep." 7. "Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles."

This scripture holds three important concepts to me. First it identifies the supremacy of Christ dying for our sins.

Next, when Jesus was killed on the cross, his followers, with exception of John, scattered in confusion, disbelief and for their own self-preservation, even though Jesus told them of what was about to happen, think Peter's denial.

But after they had seen the resurrected savior, their lives were transformed in such a way that they boldly proclaimed the gospel message.

Here's another compelling example of lives empowered through faith in Christ: It is finally revealed that Christ was seen arisen physically to over 500 people. Christ was hung on a cross, his side pierced and his body entombed, and 500 people saw him afterwards.

Folks, this isn't a myth or a fable. It is documented history.

If you don't believe in Jesus and the Bible being the book of salvation, maybe you should do a little research about the history of the greatest true story ever told.

Act 22:16 "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on his name. Act 2:21 And it shall be, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved. Act 8:16 for as yet it was fallen upon none of them: only they had been baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. Act 19:5 And when they heard this, they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. Rom 10:13 for, Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

All of the above passages have one thing in common and it is found in the expression "Calling on the name of the Lord." Needless to say one cannot be saved without "Calling on the name of the Lord." But, is it simply verbally calling on the name of Jesus? Is it a faith only acknowledgment? I THINK NOT!

Paul in Acts 22:16, was shown to have called on the name of the Lord when he arose and was baptized according to the instructions of Ananias. Paul was already convinced (believed) that Jesus was Lord but he was still in an unsaved state, in his sins, when Ananias came to him. Jesus had told Paul he would be told what to do (Acts 9:6). Ananias told him to arise and be baptized washing away his sins, calling on the Lord's name. It was by his being immersed that he called on the Lord in obedience. Is this not the same thing that Peter had told the multitude in Acts 2:38?

Prices through the roof! Gold and Silver Recycling opens for business in town this week!

By Laura Roberts
Staff Writer

Gold and Silver have reached Record Prices. If you have some drawers full of old Jewelry or a Jar full of old coins, you might want to cash them in now. Gold has reached world record prices and silver markets have toppled the 30 year charts. The recent record prices have been associated with wealthy investors buying gold and silver commodities trying to avoid the weak US dollar and slow recovering economy. There is no better time than now for you to gather up some of that broken jewelry and other precious metals.

The American Precious Metals Recycling (APMR) is setting up a convenient recycling operation. During their stay, local residents can bring in gold, silver, platinum jewelry and coins and turn them in for cash on the spot. Just about everybody has some amount of gold or silver just lying around. The staff will help sort costume jewelry, broken items and coins. Just bring it all. This week anybody can sell them direct to the Recycling firm. Usually selling direct to a recycling firm is reserved for larger wholesale customers like jewelry stores, pawn shops, antique shops, dentists, commercial users. The Recycling firm has the ability to smelt and refine precious metals cutting out the middle man. APMR wants to do business with everybody. The recyclers visit cities around the country hosting 3 to 5 day events allowing the general public to take advantage of directly recycling precious metals.

Wealthy Coin Collectors want your old coins

Money is close to unlimited for high grade coins.

By Laura Roberts, staff writer.

Got Coin? It might be just the time to cash in. This week starting Tuesday and continuing through Friday. The American Rare Collectibles Association will be purchasing all types of silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free. Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort your coins. Then the quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors, the grade being higher makes the coin worth more money. With the current gold and silver market, high prices are being paid for older coins too. Any dollar, half, quarter and dime coins minted in the US 1964 and before are more desirable. These automatically qualify. The coins worth is determined by the rarity and the grade. Old silver dollars are worth a great premium right now. Even well worn and heavily circulated ones are bringing good premium. Franklin and Kennedy halves, Washington quarters, Mercury and Roosevelt dimes are all worth many times their face value. While older types like bust, seated, liberties and barber coins are worth even more. Gold coins are really worth a lot right now. This country did not start minting coins until 1792. Before that trade was conducted using gold dust and nuggets. The government opened the first mints and began distributing the coins in 1792. By the beginning of the 19th century coins

The response has been tremendous. Many people make two or three visits to get cash for their items. The word of mouth travels fast between relatives, friends, and neighbors. Local residents have been known to bring everything from small coin collections to Silverware sets to large bags of old jewelry and watches that need sorted. Times are such that even the most secure family could use some extra spending cash. As the economy recovers these record prices are expected to go back down making this an important time to act now. The mere fact that large quantities are being brought in adds to the success for every visitor. The APMR has been paying a lot more money than other choices.

The APMR is inviting everyone to bring all types of jewelry. Also other items can be turned in for cash. The types of items they will accept include: all jewelry; all watches; anything gold; platinum; gold coins; gold ounces; dental gold; old coins dated 1964 and before. This includes Dollars before 1935, halves before 1970, quarters and dimes; anything marked sterling, .925 or .999 including flatware sets, tea pots, silver & gold bars, silver ounces, Gold and Silver Coins 1792-2011, any age bullion, and all industrial precious metals.

If you are the owner of an antique shop, resale shop, jewelry store, pawn shop, dentist office or a dealer please let the staff know. We want to set up a program for repeat business. Large quantities may help for extra consideration. Long term contracts and direct shipping will help to keep your costs low and guarantee every dollar possible will go to you or your business. Stop by the event or give us a call at 217-371-9580 and paper currency were widespread and our monetary system was here to stay. In 1933 Roosevelt required all banking institutions to turn in all gold coins. Once all banks turned in this gold, the President raised the gold standard from $20 per ounce to $33. This was his way of stimulating the economy during the great depression. However, gold coins were never redistributed after the recall. Not all gold coins were turned in. Many people chose to keep their gold. These gold coins are sought after by collectors today and bring many times the face value. There are also some key dates which command premium prices. Other types of coins will also be purchased including foreign coins, Indian head cents, 2 cent pieces, half dimes, 3 cent pieces, buffalo nickels, 1940s nickels, V nickels, gold foreign coins, to name a few. Collectors warn, please do not try to clean the coins. This will decrease their value.

Items we will accept include:
Scrap Jewelry
Dental Gold
Sterling Silverware
Sterling Tea Sets
Silver Dollars
All coins 1970 & earlier
Gold Coins
Anything marked .999, .925 or Sterling
Silver and gold bars or rounds any age
Industrial Scrap
All forms of platinum

What should you expect if you go to the event to sell your gold and or silver? Just gather up all gold, silver and platinum in any form. If you are not sure if its gold or silver bring it in and they will test it for free. No appointment is necessary. Priority is based on arrival time. Seating will be available. When you are called, a professional buyer will ask you to display all of your items so they can be sorted and analyzed. Current prices will be used from the world spot market index. After being paid for your items, you will be provided with information on what you might bring for a second visit. Waiting time will vary but typically will not be over 15 - 30 minutes, many are helped immediately upon arrival.

American Precious Metals Recycling (APMR) will be open beginning Tuesday 10AM- 7 PM Event continues through Friday. No appointment is needed.

The APMR has paired with the American Rare Collectibles Association to help clear out your attic. The Roadshow has people on hand to buy anything old, collections of all sorts, estates and other rare items. These include major categories like instruments, military items, old toys, pocket watches, currency, collectible coins, graded and high quality items. The staff will make you a cash offer on the spot for all of these items. Bring it in, have one of the professional buyers give you your next car payment, pay off that credit card, or give you some extra spending cash, Visit us today.

Local Residents are ready to cash in!

American Collectibles buyers in town this week and ready to stimulate economy!

By Laura Roberts
STAFF WRITER

The response from local residents inquiring about this weeks visit has been tremendous. The team of buyers this week are purchasing a vast array of vintage item (see list) along with coins, gold jewelry, and sterling silver items the Recycling firm deals in. It is a local shot in the arm for our economy. Professional buyers for the event expect to spend in excess of $350,000 this week, at the event in Lawrenceburg cash directly to local residents on the spot. Event coordinators explain that these collectors are paying collector prices for vintage items. It's a great way for people to get top value for their items.

'I like the way my team is playing'

Favorites when season began, Lady Bearcats look extra good at right time

One way to gauge just where a basketball team stands in February is to consider the questions and criticisms thrown its way. Take the Kentucky Wildcats. Over the last two weeks, their demolitions of LSU, Tennessee and South Carolina have been so thorough that the big question now is simply, "Are they peaking too early?" Translation: This team is scary good and the only way it is going to be derailed is if it comes back to earth. (Disclaimer: My deadline for is early Tuesday morning, so I am writing this less than 24 hours before Florida was to try to knock the Wildcats off in Rupp Arena Tuesday night. And frankly, I didn't know what to think about that one. But back to the original thought.)

Are they peaking too early? It brought some snickers. It's a legitimate question. Really. John Calipari must agree since he reminded his team there is a fine line between swagger, which is good, and arrogance, which is bad. Very bad.

We've all seen college basketball teams put together long winning streaks then flame out in the NCAA tournament. Or we sometimes see a team like last year's Kentucky team that staggered through the road portion of its SEC schedule, then caught fire in March for a trip to the Final Four.

It happens. And it is reasonable to ask if Kentucky can continue to demolish other teams for nearly another month before the post-season starts.

Those questions about peaking at the right time are just as valid, if not more so, at the high school level, where players often take part in other sports and teams do not always have schedules created equal.

But with Anderson County's regular season ending just nine days from today, Feb. 8, it was interesting to note how Lady Bearcat coach Tony Kays reacted to his team's whipping of Christian Academy of Louisville on Saturday afternoon

"I really like this team. I like the way we are playing," he said. He had reason to be. Anderson had just rolled past a team with a big-time player, China Dow, and is considered a bit of a threat to win the rugged Seventh Region. In other words, Anderson took control early, then kept its thumb down before squashing the Lady Centurions in the fourth quarter.

All along, we have known the Lady Bearcats have had the weapons. They were in everybody's pre-season Top 15, but there had been times when questioning if they had enough internal fire to navigate a tough Eighth Region was valid.

Last week, the Lady Bearcats showed signs they are coming together at just the right time with a solid win over Montgomery County, then perhaps the best performance since Christmas on Saturday.

A computer, at least, noticed. Anderson moved up to No. 7 statewide in Monday's Rating the State in the Lexington Herald-Leader.

The Lady Bearcats will be tested Friday at Woodford County, then close the regular season against a tough Owen County team and a Franklin County club that has beaten Anderson four straight times.

Only then will the real season, the tournaments, begin. Anderson is a virtual shoo-in to advance to the regional tournament, which begins on Feb. 27 at Anderson. It is then when every team must be at its best.

Getting a team to peak at the right time is not an exact science. It is usually fragile and hit-and-miss.

Saturday, Kays praised his regional rivals, then paused. "I wouldn't trade my team for any other right now," he said. "I will take my chances with this team. I like the way we are playing."

Bearcats score big win over Rockcastle

Gordon regains shooting form to lead Anderson County

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County needed this one. Badly. After three straight losses - one by a single point, another coming in overtime - the Bearcats needed Friday's win over Rockcastle County like a stressed-out teacher could use a snow day.

The Bearcats withstood an early Rockcastle punch, took control in the second quarter, then sealed things by never letting their lead dip below nine points for the final 12 minutes.

"It's about time we got a little bit smarter," Anderson County coach Glen Drury said. "We were smart for a change. Our collective team defense was better. This was the first time I have seen the kids apply the scouting report and we actually applied it on defense. I was proud of them."

Most of all, the Bearcats improved to 15-6 with the end of the regular season drawing close. The victory clinched a winning season a year after posting the lowest win total at Anderson since 1986. The Bearcats got the win over a team that left town with just a 5-18 record, but had beaten Somerset, the same team that handed Anderson its first loss of the season, earlier in the year.

"People just look at the records," Drury said. "They don't have a good record, but they are not a bad basketball team. This was a quality win against a young club. We are going to have our hands full when we have to go back down there next year."

A sophomore, Corey McPhetridge, led Rockcastle with nine points and the Rockets had just one senior in the starting lineup. Yet, Rockcastle withstood an early Anderson barrage then slapped the Bearcats back to reality with a 9-0 run through the middle of

Lady Bearcats roll past Louisville powerhouse

McKee, Brown lead dominating performance

Anderson County's Lady Bearcats are alive and well, thank you.

Pushed somewhat into the Eighth Region's back-ground after the enormous success South Oldham, a Top 10 team, and Walton-Verona, the state All-A champions, have had, the talk had shifted away from an Anderson team that was considered the regional favorite in the pre-season.

Saturday afternoon, the Lady Bearcats put on a revival that could have been an old-fashioned hoops camp meeting as they roared past Christian Academy of Louisville, 57-45.

Over the previous month, Anderson had often seemed tentative or, perhaps, uninspired. The Lady Bearcats had been winning, make no mistake, winning 9 of their last 10 games. The only loss had been a one-point setback to South Oldham.

But none of those wins were as impressive as the whipping the Lady Bearcats put on the Louisville team that has been ranked in the Top 25 most of the season.

Anderson, ranked 12th in last week's Litkenhouse Ratings, never trailed after Eriel McKee went backdoor, took

Bearcats hoping for highest finish ever

There is little secret that Anderson County's goal for this week's Region 2 wrestling tournament is to bring home the big trophy for the first time in the program's history.

But with the state's top-ranked team, LaRue County, a perennial statewide power, also residing in Region 2, few give the Bearcats much of a chance of coming away with the big prize. Second place, something Anderson has never attained at the regional level, is within reach.

The action begins Saturday, Feb. 11, beginning at 10 a.m. at Danville High School.

The Bearcats tuned up for Saturday's regional meet with five easy wins in the Conner Duals. The Anderson County swimming coach Karla Phillips was there the first time an Anderson team got in the pool for a meet. Now she hopes to be there when a Bearcat is doing laps at the sport's biggest day, the state meet.

"I have two boys that could possibly make it to state," says Phillips, a member of the school's first swim team when she was a student. "Braden Peyton is close in the 100 (-yard) freestyle and James Mason is close in the 500 (-yard) freestyle. I think these boys could make it with just a little bit of extra effort."

The Region 3 meet gets underway Friday, Feb. 10, at Falling Springs Recreation Center in Versailles. The first race is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Saturday's finals are set for 2 p.m. The top two finishers in each race advance to the state meet, to be held Feb. 23-25 at the University of Louisville.

Rams get second win over Tabernacle

From staff reports

The Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg Rams posted a 73-54 win over the visiting Tabernacle Christian of Nicholasville last Tuesday.

The Rams used a more balanced offense to pick up their second win of the season over the Torches. Christian Academy head coach Cory Robinson had the offense focus more on the team's post players, which opened up opportunities for the perimeter players to get open shots.

Starting center Jason Smith had 8 points and his backup, 6-foot-5 Michael Kuiper, had 6 points and 5 rebounds. In their spare time Smith and Kuiper would block a shot or two.

Zach Gray had the tough assignment of guarding the Torches' leading scorer while also leading the team in scoring with 15 points. If that wasn't enough he was also team-high rebounder with 7 boards. A senior, Gray has stepped up his leadership role as team captain of this team.

Dillon Harper once again shot well from beyond the 3-point arc with four bombs.

Robinson said, "The team executed well with a definite improvement in our turnovers. The team also played solid defense."

final minute.

Christian Academy relied mostly on the hot outside shooting of their guards, which kept the Rams close in the game. Since very little offense was being created by the Ram post players this allowed for the Bulldogs to give tight coverage to the perimeter shooting. The Rams were tied at the end of the third quarter at 40 all, then the Bulldogs just outscored the Rams down the stretch to win the game 54 to 48.

Christian Academy's high scorers were Dillon Harper with 16 points and Jarod Slaughter with 14.

Fitzpatrick makes it official

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

There were no surprises when Chris Fitzpatrick made it official last Wednesday.

The Anderson County High School senior signed a national letter of intent to play football for Northwestern University of the Big 10 before a large group that included family and about 20 of Fitzpatrick's football and wrestling coaches from high school all the way down to youth leagues.

A 6-foot-2, 230-pound lineman, Fitzpatrick inked with the Wildcats on the first day of the national signing period for NCAA schools. He had announced his decision in the fall. A center and defensive end for Anderson County, Fitzpatrick gained national recognition by becoming one of the nation's best long snappers. He is the first Anderson player to sign with a Football Bowl Series, commonly referred to as Division I, school since Bob Ware in the 1968-69 school year.

A second-team selection on the prestigious Courier-Journal All-State team, Fitzpatrick said he chose Northwestern over LSU, Boston College, Cincinnati, Western Kentucky and Kentucky. He expects to redshirt his first year at Northwestern, which finished last season at 6-7 after losing to Texas A&M in the Meineke Car Care Bowl.

"They offered me a full ride and I enjoy being around the coaches," Fitzpatrick said of his decision to attend the school, located in the Chicago suburb of Evanston, Ill.

He added having family in the Chicago area played a part in his decision. "I love Chicago," Fitzpatrick said. "My (paternal) grandparents live there and I have an aunt that lives there."

Fitzpatrick said he is undecided on his major at this time. He will be part of a 21-player class announced last Wednesday, the largest of coach Pat Fitzgerald's tenure at the school. Fitzgerald took over the Wildcat program in 2006 after the sudden death of coach Randy Walker.

At his signing day press conference, Fitzgerald lauded Fitzpatrick's potential as a long snapper. "Chris was an excellent two-way lineman and a big reason why his Anderson County teams were as successful as they were during his high school career," he said. "We had a chance to see him perform as a long snapper at our camp and were immediately impressed by his strength and consistency. Chris ended up being named the top long snapper at our camp as well as several other prestigious camps. Beyond that he is a great fit for our program from the standpoint of his work ethic and commitment, he comes from a great family, and we expect great things from him at Northwestern."

Those attending the ceremony at the school included, front row, from left: Angela Fitzpatrick (mother), Chris Fitzpatrick, Mike Fitzpatrick (father) and Chelsea Fitzpatrick (sister). Looking on behind the Fitzpatricks is Anderson County football coach, Mark Peach. In rear are football assistants Brian Holloman and Shawn Black, wrestling assistant coach Bill Downing and football assistant coach Kevin Ray.

Fitzpatrick, who was invited to play in the Kentucky-Tennessee Border Bowl, is also a wrestler at Anderson County and will be one of the favorites in the 220-pound class at the regional meet this week.

He will be going to Chicago in June to start lifting weights and working out with the Wildcats. While Fitzpatrick expects to redshirt, he would relish the chance to play some in the offensive line or on kickoff coverage teams.

But his main job will be long snapping.

"Chris is a great testimony to determination and a great work ethic," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "Chris has some talent and skills, but he worked extremely hard to get the opportunity to play football at this level. I don't know how many times I would come up to the field house and see him out on the field snapping to someone."

Mager signs with Queens College

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It didn't take Emily Mager long to know where she was going to continue her soccer career.

"As soon as I set foot on campus, I knew it was perfect for me," said Mager, an Anderson County High School senior who signed with Queens University last Wednesday, the first day of the fall sports signing period.

Located in Charlotte, N.C., Queens competes in the NCAA's Division II and is a member of Conference Carolinas.

Queens finished last season at 7-10-1, but was 7-4-1 in conference play. The Royals were eliminated in a shootout in the conference tournament by Belmont Abbey.

The teams played to a 0-0 tie through two overtimes before Belmont Abbey won, 4-3, on penalty kicks.

Mager made her official visit to the school on Aug. 26 and made her decision soon after.

Considered the finest goalie to ever suit up at Anderson County by her coach, Jason Earnest, Mager said she believes she will get a chance at playing as a freshman at Queens.

"They said I had a chance to play," Mager said of advice given by Queens head coach Katie Talbert and her staff.

Earnest said Mager, who sometimes kept Anderson in matches with the wall she built in front of the net, can work her way into the lineup.

"She could do a lot of different things," he said.

Earnest admitted he was not up on Queens until Mager started seriously considering the school. Now, however, Earnest will be a fan of Queens now.

"Oh, I definitely think so," he laughed.

meet last year and the senior is looking to take the next step in the middle-distance sprint. He turned in a 1:04.96 in the butterfly in a meet at Shelby County on Jan. 28, good enough for 15th place in a very competitive meet against some of the region's top teams.

Mason was also just off the pace in the Shelby meet at the middle-distance endurance race.

The regional meet is divided into preliminary heats, which will be run on Friday, Feb. 10 with the top times coming back to race in the finals on Saturday.

In an individual sport such as swimming, just making the regional finals is considered a noteworthy accomplishment.

"I have a lot of swimmers that could easily make it to the finals on Saturday," Phillips said. "Braden in the 50 (-yard freestyle), Kylie Gehefer in the 100 (-yard freestyle) and 100 (-yard breaststroke). Megan Adkins, who just swam the 100 back competitively for the first time at our last meet, is very close to making it back to the finals. We also have a few relays who could very well make it. All it would take is just a little added effort for this team to score some good points."

Peyton recorded the highest finish ever for an Anderson swimmer when he placed sixth in the 100-yard freestyle at last year's regional meet. Four of the five that finished ahead of him last season have graduated. Mason also made it to Saturday last year, turning in good times in the 200 individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke. Gehefer also made it to Saturday in the 100-yard breaststroke, while several Anderson relay teams made the Saturday races last year.

As a team, Anderson is not expected to be a contender for the championship of the 33-team region.

Woodford County is a perennial power along with Elizabethtown.

A year ago, Woodford won both the boys' and girls' team titles. Elizabethtown was second in the girls while Shelby and Danville tied for second in the boys.

WRESTLING

Bearcats routed every opponent, with the closest margin being a 62-12 win over Covington Scott. The Bearcats routed Conner, 67-6, in the tournament final.

Nine Anderson wrestlers had perfect days, winning all five bouts, at Conner as the Bearcats piled up 356 points, 67 points ahead of second-place Meade County.

Mason Baker (106 pounds), Lane Bicknell (120), Chris McDaniel (126), Austin Dillow (132), T.W. Stockton (138), Jake Vincent (160), Alex Swartz (170/182), Travis Kaelin (195), and Chris Fitzpatrick (220) all were perfect in five bouts.

Carlton hopes the Bearcats, ranked 15th in the Kentucky Wrestling Coaches' Association poll, will take the momentum of many strong showings over the last month and turn it into a big regional finish.

"I feel that having such a successful weekend, both individually and collectively as a team, really gives us a big momentum boost going into this Saturday's regional tournament," Anderson coach Graham Carlton said.

"Our guys are turning it on at the right time. They've worked hard all season, and hopefully they will reap the fruits of their labor this weekend."

Anderson has three wrestlers seeded at the top of the region: Dillow, Stockton and Eric Spencer (145).

The top four regional finishers in each weight class will advance to the state tournament, to be held Feb. 17-18, at Alltech Arena, at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

Enthusiasm makes the difference as Bearcats romp past McCreary

Carmichael, Laswell lead Anderson to easy win

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Positive thinkers are right. Enthusiasm does make a difference.

At least that was the case Saturday night when Anderson County put a 71-45 thumping on McCrary Central in boys' basketball action.

The Bearcats took the lead for good when Seth Carmichael's run-out made it 8-6 midway through the first quarter and built their advantage to as many as 28 points in the final minutes.

For the Bearcats to record back-to-back victories for the first time since beating Collins on Jan. 6, it was a combination of pressure defense and simply playing fundamental basketball.

"I thought we played with a lot of passion tonight," Anderson coach Glen Drury said. "I think we had been coming out lethargic. We try to pick up our enthusiasm. We had a little bit more passion for what we are doing. At the same time when you are pressing, it looks like you are more intense."

The Bearcats forced McCreary Central into 21 turnovers and limited the Raiders to 1-for-19 shooting beyond the 3-point arc.

Anderson improved to 16-6, while McCreary fell to 11-14. It was fitting that Carmichael would do the honors of putting the Bearcats ahead for good as he scored 14 points and pulled down 6 rebounds on the night. "Carmichael had his best game of the year," Drury noted.

But it was 9-2 outburst over the first three minutes of the second quarter gave Anderson a 21-11 lead and put things firmly in the Bearcats' control. Then after Darrin Laswell swished a 3-pointer to put Anderson up 24-13 at the 4:39 mark of the second quarter, the Bearcats never saw their lead dip into single digits again.

Laswell joined Carmichael at the top of the Anderson scoring parade, but 10 different Anderson players scored.

By the end of the third quarter, Anderson was up 51-35 and even though Drury gave playing time to every player that dressed, the lead grew to 71-43 inside the final minute.

"You have a nice team," McCreary coach Robert Jones told Drury as they went through the customary post-game handshake.

While Drury will be quick to remind an observer his team has some deficiencies - the same can be said for every Eighth Region team in 2012 - he was also quick to note the Bearcats showed improvement heading into the final two weeks of the regular season.

"I think we are getting smarter. That is what we have been after," Drury said. "We have got to play every play if we want to be successful in the post-season."

"I like what I have seen the last two nights. You are a lot smarter when you run an offense. We are passing the ball better. You have to do that in the post-season. Our passion for the game has got to stay that way."

Ranking the region

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

With 10 days left in the high school basketball regular-season, things are beginning to shape up for the contenders in the races for the Eighth Region crowns. Last week saw South Oldham score a big win that will have a major bearing on the boys' regional race, then suffer its first loss to a regional foe three nights later.

On the girls' side, Anderson County had the most impressive week, knocking off title contenders in other regions in convincing fashion and moving up to a No. 7 ranking statewide in the Rating the State rankings that appeared in Monday's Lexington Herald-Leader. The Lady Bearcats are now a slight favorite to win the region, according to the same poll.

Here is a look at the top teams in the region as I see them.

Boys' Eighth Region

1. South Oldham (15-7, 8-1 against regional opponents). While the Dragons suffered their first loss to a regional foe Friday night at Gallatin County, the big story was their convincing win over district foe North Oldham last Tuesday. With that one, South Oldham clinched the top seed in the 29th District and are a virtual shoo-in to advance to the regional tournament now. "They have been the most consistent team in the region so far," Gallatin County coach Jon Jones said after his game at Anderson County on Wednesday.

2. Oldham County (20-5, 6-1). The Colonels were the first regional team to get to 20 wins last week, but an earlier loss to South Oldham still stings. Oldham will be the No. 2 seed in the 29th District Tournament and will play a dangerous North Oldham in the first round. Still, Oldham is the defending champion and can combine athleticism and experience. Has won seven straight.

3. Collins (17-9, 6-4). The Titans have quietly made their way into the top echelon of contenders. They followed an impressive win over Bullitt East with thrashings of Henry County and Central Hardin last week. Collins might be the most talented team in the region and is playing very well at this point, winning five of its last six.

4. North Oldham (17-8, 8-2). Dropped a notch after losing to South Oldham but still has the region's top inside-outside combo in Devon Rowan and David Levitch. Of note, though, is the fact that Oldham County and North Oldham will play in the first round of district tournament. Translation: One of them is going to the regional tournament in street clothes.

5. Owen County (17-8, 14-3). Still lurking just below the big names, but the Rebels have been rolling along.

Other threats: Simon Kenton, Gallatin County, Anderson County, Spencer County, Grant County.

Girls' Eighth Region

1. South Oldham (19-4, 10-1). South has had three impressive wins since scaring No. 1 Mercy in the Louisville Invitational Tournament. Jasmine Whitfield is now the second leading scorer in school history (behind Lauren Jones) and Mary Dye has become the school's all-time leading rebounder. Still No. 1 in my rankings since the Dragons beat Anderson County at Anderson.

2. Anderson County (18-5, 4-1). Lady Bearcats move up after an impressive week last week. They rallied against a good Montgomery County team, then dismantled a very good Christian Academy of Louisville team that included highly-regarded China Dow. Anderson appears to be getting more comfortable in some new roles, mandated by the loss of guard Destiny Stewart over the Christmas holidays.

3. Walton-Verona (22-5, 12-1). Some questions arose concerning Walton-Verona last week. Three days after beating Newport Central Catholic for the state All-A championship, they took a 54-25 whipping from the same team in a regular season game. Walton-Verona righted itself with three wins, including a romp past Gallatin County, after that one.

4. Owen County (19-5, 16-2). Still cruising along just below the "Big 3" but is very dangerous and can beat anyone.

5. Collins (17-8, 8-4). Still a lot of questions if Collins can put together enough consecutive good games to win the region, but, as an impressive win over Franklin County last week showed, the Titans are capable of knocking any team off on any night.

Best of the rest: Simon Kenton, Gallatin County, Shelby County.

a pass from Makenzie Cann and scored to put Anderson up 6-4 midway through the first quarter.

It was a fitting way to take the lead. The Lady Bearcats used pretty much the same formula all afternoon to claim the victory.

McKee led Anderson with 21 points and 13 rebounds. Sydney Brown, in perhaps her best game since before Christmas, tallied 17 and Cann scored 11.

"I like the way we came out with a lot of energy," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "We recognized that we had a mismatch inside and Sydney took advantage of it and Makenzie and Eriel did a good job setting the play up."

Brown simply powered her way to do as she pleased on the blocks.

"When Sydney plays determined like that there's not too many people that can stop her," Kays said, before acknowledging that his soft-spoken senior must push herself to be more aggressive.

"Sydney defers a lot. She is very unselfish and tries to get other people the ball," Kays said. "She needs to be more selfish and recognize that our offense runs through her."

What the Lady Bearcats did not do was allow Christian Academy's China Dow, who is being recruited by major colleges, to run wild. Dow scored 16 points, 11 below her average, before fouling out early in the fourth quarter.

"Alex Avritt had her the majority of the time. Alex did a good job guarding her and got aggressive," Kays said. "It was good we got her in foul trouble early. That was part of the game plan too, to get her in foul trouble."

Anderson seemed to be in good shape through much of the first half, going on an 8-0 run late in the first quarter, then opening its lead to as many as seven points during the second frame as McKee took over.

McKee scored 13 first half points and set up at least three of Brown's five first half baskets with assists.

However, leading 24-19, the Lady Bearcats fired up an ill-advised shot. Dow claimed the rebound then went the distance, firing in a jumper with 3.0 seconds left to make it 24-21.

The potential seven-point lead had turned into a precarious margin that could be erased with one long bomb.

Christian Academy's Paige Gardner had also burned Anderson for 8 first-half points, but the Lady Bearcats put the clamps on her, limiting her to a single basket after halftime.

"Our kids are smart. They figured it out and knew what to do after the half," Kays said. "We adjusted."

Just like the Lady Bearcats have learned to adjust with a lineup that has been without point guard Destiny Stewart since just before the New Year.

"We are still missing Destiny," Kays said. "I would love to have her at point guard because that is her position. But she is probably not going to be back."

Cann, who had been a primary scorer, moved to the point and appeared much more comfortable running the show Saturday.

"There are games when (Cann) is going to be asked more to score, others she will be asked to be the set up person," Kays noted. "Makenzie's length up front gives us an advantage. Kenzie will find them if they are open."

the first quarter.

That blitz left Anderson down 11-6, a deficit that grew to seven points on two occasions before the Bearcats righted things. Anderson had taken a quick 4-0 lead but had dominated play so thoroughly in the first 67 seconds that

Rockcastle coach Benny

Blanton called a quick timeout.

"Sometimes, I think this team is too moody for this time of the year," Drury said. "We got a little lead and relaxed. We didn't stay focused. We take plays off. We get ahead and say, 'OK, let's take a few plays off.'"

"Then, the next thing you know, you have a tight game because someone is ahead of you.

This club has done that repeatedly."

A baseline jumper from Jay Smith and a 19-foot bomb from Lowell Gordon seemed to get the Bearcats going again. Gordon would lead all scorers with 14 points. Ironically, that first-quarter bucket that drew Anderson within 16-13 was his only basket from inside the 3-point line, connected from downtown four times last Friday.

"Gordon was back," Drury said. "I told him he would be back, and he was."

Gordon sank four home run balls, while Darrin Laswell swished two during Anderson's 23-10 outburst in the second quarter when the Bearcats took control.

Jan D. Rogers, Clerk Anderson District Court Probate Division

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master

Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, February 23, 2012, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
